

Identify Key Respondents for Deeper Insights in Real-Time

profilesNow is a key tool within InsightsNow's proprietary technology, reportsNow. profilesNow allows you to access and analyze individual participant data as your survey is happening. This gives you the ability to flag key respondents for follow-up research, whether it be an extension to the survey, one-on-one live chat or an online interview.

By allowing this instant identification during data collection, you can eliminate time lag between stages and elements of your study as well as seamlessly and effectively combine quantitative and qualitative methodology. This is especially ideal for complex concept testing or product repositioning for deep consumer feedback. The entire platform is highly customizable to your unique research needs, and integrates with your survey technology for cost and timing efficiencies.

How you can get deeper insights...

Monitor Participants

Set up a dashboard to monitor and select your participants based on established or emergent criteria, as surveys are happening.

Collaborative Tools

Engage with your research partners and stakeholders from remote locations to monitor and interact with reports in real time, together.

Screening Participants

Make decisions on the spot of which participants will continue into multiple phases of research, and get it done all at once.

Engaging with Participants

Combine the initial quant portion of your study with immediate, subsequent qual research by engaging directly with chosen participants.
